A special note:

For the Love of Our Annabelle Skye

A few times in our lives we may receive beautiful gifts. The type of gift that fills your life with joy, happiness, laughter and love. Annabelle Skye was our gift. A little ball of fur that truly changed our lives and made every day a joy to be alive.

It has taken every ounce of strength to write this dealing with our loss and devastation through our tears that never seem to stop. Our baby girl had just turned three years old, was a happy girl that loved us, loved rides, and loved, loved, loved playing with her ball.

One afternoon with no warning our sweet baby girl passed away. She was playing, barking at the mailman and the UPS man, just a normal day. The doctors have explained to us that it was a heart defect and something called pericardial effusion. It happens in a split second and there is nothing anyone can do. Believe me, I tried so hard to save my baby girl. I truly have wished I had magical powers that I would have gladly given part of my life to save hers. We cherished every single moment with Miss Sassy Pants.

We all have beautiful gifts in our lives, cherish and hold every single day dear to your heart..

We love you Annabelle Skye. We were suppose to have grown old together. I hope that our other babies were there waiting at the Rainbow Bridge, to greet you with a wiggle and a ball and you are running with them as fast as you can; smiling your big smile.

We will be with you again babydoll. For the love of our Annabelle Skye.....
