

Cashmere Mae Siple

October 21, 2011 - March 25, 2025

Cashmere Mae ("Cash", "Cashy," "Tina", "Miss tina", "Missy girl", "Cashy poo", "Cashy-mere") Mae Siple was born on October 21, 2011; and passed on March 25, 2025. She is survived by her pet parents, Payton Tiple & Tyler Ferree; human sibling, Talon Siple; pet siblings: Millie, Jake the turkey, and multiple chickens.

Cashmere was very close with and loved going to visit her Grandma Vicki Denney & grandpa Dennis Denney.

Cashmere would carry stuffed animals around in her mouth and sleep with them under her chin but if they had a squeaker in them she would tear it up and take the squeaker out and chew it up. She also loved playing fetch & tug of war with sticks. She would pick up huge long sticks that were more like logs and carry them around.

Her favorite game was when we would pretend to take her toy or stick away from her. She didn't want us to actually take it but she wanted us to pretend to try to take it. In her youth she would jump onto a rope that we hung from a tree branch and she would dangle from the rope by her mouth and swing back and forth while trying to tug it down from the tree. She loved to go "bye-bye" and take a ride in the car with the windows down.

Cashmere had separation anxiety and did not like being left alone. She also strongly disliked bath time.

Her favorite place to sleep was at the foot of our bed underneath the covers and she had to be touching our legs except for when i was pregnant, then she would sleep right next to my stomach.

I was concerned when I found out Cash was coming to visit the first time I was concerned because of the bad publicity Pitbulls get but I saw how sweet she was and realized I didn't have nothing to worry about. She stayed here with her Mommy and was here for almost a year and I came to love her so much. I remember having a ceiling fan and it had two strings hanging from it one for the light and one for the fan and she would jump up to try and get the them and I never saw a dog jump as high as her and she would do it till we stopped her because I was afraid she would have a heart attack. When Payton would leave town we were her babysitters and she would watch the door for her to get back and wouldn't go in our bedroom but slept on the recliner but I would leave the door open in case she came in there later in the night. I would give her treats and soft food and she always expected it. The night Payton took her to be put down I gave her ice-cream with vanilla and orange sherbert and she ate it well , also gave her treats and a can of dog food. When they left I cried most of the evening. I fell in love with her and I will miss her but if dogs go to Heaven Cashie Pooh will be there. RIP Sweet Cashie Pooh and I hope to see you in Heaven!!!!
