

Chloe Hildebrand

December 19, 2010 - January 25, 2021

Chloe Hildebrand, beloved fur baby of Alison, Sean and Juliette Hildebrand, crossed over the Rainbow Bridge on January 25, 2021.

Chloe was so special in every way. She was born in Seattle, Washington, on December 19, 2010, and had traveled around a lot, from Seattle to New York City, and then to Indiana, where she passed away. I adopted her on August 7, 2011, and we lived together until moving to New York City where she met her human dad, Sean.

We would frequently call her Chloe Monster. She carried around a bluish-pink peacock which was her favorite. We would, many times, know that it was the peacock she had because she would howl whenever she had it in her mouth. She also had a stick that she liked to carry around with her as well, up and down the stairs and around the house. She LOVED Temptation Treats, and one time when we went away on vacation, we came back to the bag being ripped open by her. She was so quick with grabbing the treats. She also loved to sleep by warmth, be it the fireplace, radiator, or heated window perch. Her favorite places to sleep were on the bed, or under the bed. She also loved to sleep under the dining room table on the chairs. She loved to be under things because she was skittish and afraid, and it allowed her to feel safe. She didn't like a lot of noise and preferred peace and quiet.

Her human sibling was Juliette (18 months old), however, she never really became close with Juliette, as she was afraid of her and skittish with people she didn't know well. But once she got to know you, she warmed up and was the most affectionate little creature. She frequently liked to cuddle up and sleep in-between her pet parents, Alison and Sean. For such a tiny little kitty, she had the loudest purr. She also liked to paw at her human dad (Sean) and try to get his attention.

Her absolute favorite food was Chick-fil-A. In fact, as soon as we would get it, it was like she would smell it, because she would run to us right away. She loved human food and cat food as well. She also loved bacon.

We have so many fond memories of her that we will miss greatly -- she was the sweetest kitty and she had so much love in her heart and was so affectionate. I will miss her sunbathing at the window, and jumping up on the bed with me when I was resting.

She is also survived by her feline siblings Mia (age 12) and Kappi (age 4). We all miss you, Chloe, and love you, and know we will be reunited again someday.

“Chloe was the kitty that my daughter adopted when she moved to Seattle. First, she fostered her because Chloe was found with an animal bite on her neck. She quickly came to love her and adopted Chloe when she was well enough. I first met Chloe when I visited Alison in Seattle. I remember Alison would come home with me and Chloe would come out from under the bed to greet her. She liked to be under things - beds, coffee tables - and also heat - laying on top of a radiator. At some point, I gave lodging to Chloe and her sister Mia for 6 months in my house. She then lived with our cats Samson and Leo. 4 in an apartment in NYC! I remember she liked to shred things - moving boxes, litter liners. She'd also throw all the litter out of the litter box. It took her a while to get close to me. She'd inch her way under my coffee table. I'd put my hand out and she'd sniff it. Eventually she jumped up on the couch behind me and sniffed my hair. I guess that meant we were “friends” now. One time she decided that dental floss might be “spaghetti” and ate it. We had to rush her to emergency. Thankfully she was OK. She was also very protective of her sister Mia. I found that out when my cat Leo messed with Mia and Chloe lunged off the top of my couch to protect her. I never saw Leo run so fast. Chloe, you were a feisty kitty for a little small framed cat. You had a lot of love to give and gave it readily to your pet parents Alison and Sean who miss you dearly. Although you will be missed and never, ever forgotten, I know you are in pet heaven over the rainbow bridge peaceful and healthy now playing with my cat Samson and joined by our others Jasmin, Coco and Pantera who will get to know you.
