

Simba Doo McGinnis

August 17, 2018 - June 9, 2019

Simba Doo McGinnis came into the lives of Dana McGinnis and Angela Milligan on August 17, 2018, from the small town of New Haven, Indiana. His mom recalls the first day she brought him home, he got into charcoal and turned himself all black. He had several nicknames, just a few of them Nimba Poo, Handsome, and Nimma Nut.

Simba led a fun life that included walks, or going "Bye Bye", chewing and playing hard with his many siblings, playing in the water, and of course, playing in the mudd. He didn't have many toys he didn't like, but his favorites were definitely chew bones, pull ropes, his cat sibling's toys, and tennis balls. His favorite places to sleep were in the hallway and under the bed, but he loved being close to his parents more than anything.

While he may love the mud, he severely hated bath time. Simba was family dog and while he may not like strangers, he loved his family. His mom writes "I'd leave for work and he'd walk me to the door and when I'd come home he was waiting at the door to give me a hug and kiss."

Simba is survived by his pet parents, Dana McGinnis and Angela Milligan. He is also survived by his siblings, human and pet, Snookie (sister), Karma (sister), Phoenix (brother), and his grandparents (Debra and Robert Thompson).

Simba passed on June 9, 2019. RIP Simba Doo McGinnis.
