

Tyson Johnson

March 20, 2020

Tyson (Little Ty, Tea Cup) Johnson came into his pet parents life as a stray on October 15, 2019. Although he spent just five months with his beloved family, Tyson made a huge impression.

He came to his mom and dad, Chris and Alison, when one of the neighbors found him in her yard. She was going house to house looking for Tyson's owner. Alison told her if she couldn't find his owner to bring him back so he didn't go to the shelter. The neighbor never found his owner so Alison took Tyson in. Chris didn't want Tyson at first, but how he quickly grew on not only him, but the entire family! In his short couple of months with his new family, he wiggled his way into their hearts to become a huge part of the family. Tyson started limping; he was taken to the vet, only for his pet parents to get the horrible news that Tyson had bone cancer, which took him much too soon. As Chris and Alison shared, "With Tyson's loss, a piece of our hearts went with him."

Tyson's favorite toys were his rope, balls, and his best friend Buster (who he sometimes forgot was his brother and thought was one of his toys). Some of his favorite activities included running in the yard with his fur family, walking at Mounds Park and stealing his human brothers' toys. One thing Tyson did not like was going outside in the rain. He loved to sleep right in the middle of his mom and dad, snoring as loud as he could.

The greatest memories from his family were walking at Mounds Park and Tyson using his big boy bark to see how loud he could be . . .and when his big tail would knock everything off the counter.

In addition to his pet parents, Tyson is survived by his human siblings, Ian, Owen and Mason; and pet siblings, Rocky, Cash, Bella and Buster.
